Rebecca J. Atencio is an assistant professor of Brazilian literary and cultural studies at Tulane University. Founder of the blog Transitional Justice in Brazil, she lives in New Orleans, Louisiana.

“An extremely well-written, engaging, and interesting contribution to the scholarship on postdictatorial memory construction in Latin America. Atencio allows readers to see the multiple and layered ways in which postconflict societies construct and contest the meanings of the past.”

Latin American Perspectives is the most important resource available providing in-depth progressive analyses of developments in Latin America. It is the unforgettable journal!”

—Alfredo Saad Filho, SOAS, University of London

Latin American Perspectives is a theoretical and scholarly journal for discussion and debate on the political economy of capitalism, imperialism, and socialism in the Americas. Offering a vital multidisciplinary view of the powerful forces that shape the Americas, most issues focus on a single problem, nation, or region, providing an in-depth look from participants and scholars.

RHM Special Issue: History of the Book

Artist: Moum Inoué Steel

Revista Hispánica Moderna is accepting articles for a special issue on the history of the book. We welcome essays (both within and beyond the boundaries of Latin American and Iberian studies) that reflect on the book from its prehistory to its present.

The average length of our articles is about 8,000 words (in either English or Spanish), and the deadline for submissions is September 1, 2016. You may find a description of the special issue and guidelines here:

<http://laic.columbia.edu/hispanic-institute/rhm-call-for-papers-history-the-book/>

Our goal is not only to offer an exhaustive map of this field of study, but also to challenge and expand its boundaries. We sincerely hope that you will join us in this pursuit.
