

AFRICAN ECONOMIC HISTORY

Edited by George Bob-Milliar, Mariana Candido,
Melchisedek Chétima, Toyin Falola, and Toby Green
ISSN 0145-2258, eISSN 2163-9108 | 2x per year

African Economic History publishes scholarly essays in English, French, and Portuguese on the economic history of African societies from precolonial times to the present. It features research in a variety of fields and time periods, including studies on labor, slavery, trade and commercial networks, economic transformations, colonialism, migration, development policies, social and economic inequalities, and poverty. The audience includes historians, economists, anthropologists, sociologists, political scientists, policymakers, and a range of other scholars interested in African economies—past and present.

Available on JSTOR and Project MUSE

Learn more: bit.ly/AfricanEconHist

Submit: bit.ly/aehtsubs

Follow:  @AfricanEconHist

 @AfricanEconomicHistory

 THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN PRESS
JOURNALS DIVISION

LBR

Luso-Brazilian Review

Did you miss it?

Popular articles published in 2018

When Paths Cross: The Embodied National Crisis in the Representation of the Sertanejo in Graciliano Ramos's Vidas secas & Euclides da Cunha's Os sertões and "Judas Ahasverus"

Poema Quesado Valente Meyer, vol. 55 #1

O dia 8 de junho de 1931 em São Paulo: A Experiencia n° 2, de Flávio de Carvalho, como emblema de um modernismo outro

Alva Martínez Teixeira, vol. 55 #2

"Lembras-te de quando era tudo diferente?": Concrete Poetry and Revolution in Portugal in the 1960s and '70s

Eduardo Ledesma, vol. 55 #1

Reconceiving Hipólito José da Costa as a Transatlantic Translator

Krista Brune, vol. 55 #1

A transparência do canto e o obstáculo do mundo: O tempo no modernismo de Mário de Andrade

Pedro Meira Monteiro, vol. 55 #2

Mário de Andrade: Centralidade excêntrica

Ivan Marques, vol. 55 #2

Read these articles and more online at lbr.uwpress.org

Or read the journal on Project MUSE at <http://bit.ly/lbr-pm>.

 THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN PRESS
JOURNALS DIVISION

<https://uwpress.wisc.edu/journals>